Description

Patricia Walsh is an experienced public art consultant with over 20 years in the field, offering comprehensive services to community leaders implementing authentic and locally significant public art policies and programs. Her expertise covers developing tailored policies, creating cross-sector partnerships, engaging diverse stakeholders, establishing collection management strategies, conducting research, and providing access to professional development resources and industry trends. Patricia assists in integrating public art into urban development, fostering community expression, and developing programs that resonate with local values and histories. Patricia's approach balances visionary goals with practical implementation, offering policy development, advisory services, research, evaluation, and customized strategies for government agencies and non-profits. With a track record of successful projects across the United States, including drafting ordinances and evaluating programs, she can guide clients in bringing their public art vision to life. Whether working with city planners, arts administrators, or community leaders, Patricia helps leverage public art to reflect community identity and enhance public spaces. Patricia focuses on consulting, thought partnerships, speaking, and writing projects. Contact her today to learn how we can work together.
