Biography

Loop is a collaborative artistic partnership founded by Harriet Lumby and Alan Hayes. Based in their Somerset studio, they have established a reputation for creating large-scale experiential installations at the intersection of technology, science and art. With over thirty years combined practice focussing on utilising reflections and illusion, this has created a common theme throughout their visually impactful, architectural style work.

Their playful sculptures invite audiences to be engulfed by intense and thought-provoking choreographed audiovisual journeys. Frequently working collaboratively with sound artists, musicians, and the science community has helped to elevate their work, allowing deeper exploration of ideas and concepts and enhancing the bond between audience members and the works themselves.

They have a track record in creating both large-scale site-specific work as well as touring installations and have successfully done this in both the UK and internationally.
